WILCOX & GIBBS
SEWING MACHINE.
We would call attention to the following facts in connection with this Machine, which render it superior to any other in use:
It forms a flat elastic seam which will not rip in wear.
It is entirely noiseless.
A patented device prevents its being turned backward.
The needle cannot be set wrong.
Can be used successfully without other instructions than accompany the Machine.
It received the GOLD MEDAL of the American Institute in 1863. For particulars enquire of

A Tornado

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA, DAMAGED TO THE AMOUNT OF $200,000.

Last Wednesday evening the close of a day memorable in South Bend for its extreme and unprecedented darkness and rain, was visited by a tornado [illegible], the most terrible and devastating ever known in the West. The track of the whirlwind was westward and it spared nothing in its course. Commencing about a mile and a half west of Notre Dame University, which is situated about a mile from the town, it passed westward, spending its fury as near as can be ascertained about ten miles west of South Bend, in a straight line. The track of the tornado was over two hundred yards wide. It swept through the business centre of the place, demolishing or seriously damaging nearly every building and structure in its course.

The roofs and chimneys of substantial edifices were swept away like straw, and many frame buildings were totally destroyed. Trees, shrubbery, fences and out-houses were torn to atoms and swept away before the gale on the wings of the wind. Nothing in the course of the enraged elements was saved. The solid walls of brick blocks seemed to offer no more resistance to it than the barns and temporary structures. Wherever a grove or piece of woods lay in the route of the tempest, the stalwart oaks and maples were prostrated like saplings in the hands of a giant, leaving a road as even as if cut by the woodman's ax.

From Notre Dame University, to the east of which the whirlwind commenced, the ground is gradually sloping toward the town proper. There are very few if any buildings of note from there to the city, the highway leading through the fine groves and well cultivated farm lands which mostly belong to the college. This was fortunate, as the fury of the gale was probably spent in passing over this portion of its route. The road from the Notre Dame crosses the St. Joseph river some distance from the business portion of the place.

At the head of the long list of losses by the tornado stands the bridge over the St. Joseph river, which was a massive structure, 300 feet in length, spanning the river like an immense culvert, from shore to shore. The bridge was wide enough for teams to pass each other with ease. It was a covered structure, the original cost being upwards of $21,000. The immense work was swept away like a rope of sand, its different sections and ruins being plunged into the swollen river. The loss of this bridge is almost a fatal blow to South Bend, as it is the only one leading from the depot to the University, which commences its Fall term in a few days. The many hundred pupils and their baggage will have to be conveyed across the river in an improvised ferry boat. Notre Dame will consequently suffer greatly from its isolation from the city and the depot. This bridge was a new structure, and built with great care as to strength. When it was swept away, a man and a boy were crossing. They clung to the timbers and were rescued after the whirlwind had passed with but slight injury. Their escape from death was truly miraculous.

The court house, which stands near the center of the village, was about the first building struck by the blast. This is a large brick structure surrounded by tall trees. Its massive roof was lifted and hurled into the adjoining grounds, in an instant. The huge trees fell to the ground, their trunks twisted off like saplings. The roof itself was greatly damaged, so much so that an entirely new one must be built to replace it with. The rain poured down in torrents, damaging and nearly spoiling all the furniture in the building.

The large brick buildings in course of erection to supply the places of those destroyed by the fire were leveled to the ground. The solid walls offered but little resistance to the fearful wind. Thousands of dollars worth of brick lie scattered where the new edifices were growing into life. Hundreds of private residences shared the same fate. One of the principal churches of South Bend was unroofed, and its shades greatly damaged, while the interior was wet almost beyond repair. All the principal stores, mills and offices were unroofed, and more or less damaged. Hundreds of residences shared the same fate.

The gale lasted but a moment, yet the whole place was transformed, from a beautiful and quiet town to a ruined city and intensely excited inhabitants. Women rushed to and fro in the drenching rain that followed, men conversed in hurried and bewildered accents among the ruins and debris. The wildest confusion followed, personal effects were scattered far and wide, while hats and bonnets could not be found at all. The strange visitation, as if a judgment from Heaven, astonished all. It was some hours, in fact not until Thursday morning, that the citizens ascertained the immense damage they had suffered.

The entire loss and damage in the city is estimated at upwards of $200,000. This includes public buildings and private residences. The damage to trees, shrubbery and plants cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, for they can only be replaced by the slow process of nature. Many years must elapse before they are seen growing again in the beauty and luxuriance that was the pride of the people of South Bend. The extent of the loss to farmers and others outside of the corporation, cannot be estimated, but it must be very heavy. Crops, fences, barns, orchards, houses, &c., were swept away before the terrible hurricane. Further reports will soon be received.

Fortunately, and as if by direct interference of Divine Power, the beautiful grounds of Notre Dame University were not injured, the tornado passing only across one corner of the farm. Thus is saved to South Bend its pride and glory, and the institution that has added infinitely toward its past growth and prosperity. It seems spared to act the future element of progress in the restoration of the town.—Chicago Times, Aug. 11.

THE JIM CROW DEMOCRACY.—The Democratic party of the North have taken the following positions during these few years, to wit:

1. That the Union must and shall be preserved, if the people will allow it to be preserved by the Democratic party.
2. That the war for the Union—hurrah for the war for the Union under McClellan, and no other man.
3. That the war for the Union was a failure.
4. That the Union soldiers were a success, and their votes are as good as anybody's.
5. That the Union soldiers having failed, should not be reinforced, or voted supplies, or allowed to vote in the army.
6. That without a draft there is no hope for the Union, therefore
7. That there shall be no draft.
8. That the Union soldiers are hirelings and beneath contempt.
9. That Abraham Lincoln is a failure.
10. That Abraham Lincoln was a prodigy of statesmanship and wisdom.
11. That Andrew Johnson is a tailor and a boor.
12. That Andrew Johnson is an able man and a Democrat.
13. That Andrew Johnson acts exclusively upon the time honored Democratic principles.
14. That Andrew Johnson tried Mrs. Surratt by court martial and hung her with a rope, and, therefore,
15. That Andrew Johnson is a radical abolitionist.
16. That no man who had a hand in the cruel war should have a hand in our civil government.
17. That it would be prudent in the Democratic party to put none but those who figured successfully in the late failure of the war upon their gubernatorial tickets.
18. That the secessionists were right, and the Unionists were right, and we are all right. By the blessed St. Patrick, hurra for the great Dimmocratic party.—Tribune.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE RADICALS.—A Washington dispatch Sept. 10th says:

A few days ago a distinguished New England Senator, noted for his plainness of speech, told President Johnson that it was publicly and extensively believed that he (the President) intended in his future policy to ignore the radical element, and asked if such was the case. Johnson in reply, declared that he never, at any time, had even intimated or intended to cut the radicals; that he allowed the largest latitude of opinion on the right of the colored people to vote; that all he had done or was doing toward the reorganization of the South was an experiment that might prove successful and might not. If unsuccessful, none would be more ready to alter his course than he would be; that one thing the radicals and all others may be satisfied was that the freedmen of the South should be fully protected in their freedom and rights.

The Democracy Perplexed.

The New York Democracy after having exhausted their ingenuity in inventing means to weaken our armies in the field, were driven by the draft first to cease their clamor against the arming of the blacks, and secondly to aid Union men in the work of filling the quotas in their respective districts. Yet they persisted in howling against the war down to the moment when the telegraph flashed northward the glad tidings of the occupation of Richmond, and then, presto! they became eloquent and loud-mouthed advocates of a vigorous prosecution of the war, and, to cap the climax, at their Convention, last week, they congratulated the people upon the successful termination of hostilities, and claimed for themselves the credit of restoring constitutional liberty throughout the land. They added that while they "stigmatize as alike fatal to national prosperity and the rights of labor the doctrine that a national debt is a national blessing," they nevertheless recognize the obligation by which the whole resources of the country are pledged to the payment of the public debt, and they promised furthermore to banish all minor party considerations in conducting the canvass. As an earnest of sincerity in making this last promise they nominated for Secretary of State a Major General whose most recent conspicuous act was the utter repudiation of the favorite Copperhead doctrine of State sovereignty, and for State Controller they selected an official who came out from their camp during the war because he could not countenance their pronounced disloyalty. Another of their nominees is a Judge who quit them when they attempted to gag Kansas with the Lecompton Constitution. The residue of their ticket is "straight," and quite to ex-Governor Seymour's liking. It is reported that when the third man on the ticket had been named, Prince John Van Buren rose and asked whether it would not be well, by way of variety, to put one Democrat in nomination. The Convention having adjourned, Democratic journalists and orators went vigorously about the work of congratulating each other upon the harmonizing of the differences that had existed in the party; but they had scarcely shaken hands over the nominations, when they learned that the leading man on their ticket would not run. General Slocum could not see the point when it was proposed that he should resign as Major General and take the laborious Secretaryship of New York at the beggarly salary of $2,500 a year. This fact having been made known, the Peace Democracy, who had been kicked out of the Albany Convention, and who are to hold a Convention in this city on the 18th instant, hinted their suspicions that the engineers of the Tammany Convention purposely nominated a man who would not accept, so that they might find excuse for substituting a name that had not been disclosed. The Peace Democracy have industriously thrown this hint about town, and it has come to be believed that the ticket, as presented by the Convention, is a blind, and that when the Republican Convention shall have shown its hand the real names that are to be borne on the Democratic ticket will appear. The Democracy do not know precisely what they are to understand ex-Governor Seymour to have meant by standing aloof from the Convention, of which, according to the slate, he was to have been Chairman. It is said, however, that he is quietly playing for a seat in the next Legislature, and that he and Thurlow Weed are comparing notes with reference to a United States Senatorship. The Greeley-Weed quarrel has been silenced, and the Democracy have no hope of making capital from that. The McKeon-McCunn-4-11-44 Democracy, kicked out of the Albany Convention, will cast their votes with the Republicans rather than do anything that may restore Tammany Hall to power, and the Democracy look glum over that. The Vermonters by an increased majority, chose a Republican ticket a week or two ago, and the Democracy find it convenient to say nothing about that. Maine has now sent in her verdict against the Democracy, and they don't want to talk about that, and down in New Jersey the Union men have nominated, in Ward, a man who is so strong among the soldiers that the Democracy are trembling lest they lose the stronghold of Copperheadism. General Kilpatrick, a speaker who, like the gallant Logan, can speak as well as fight, will take the stump in New Jersey, next week, for Ward. Briefly, the Democracy are in a bad way. The Democracy of the Common Council of this city are likewise in trouble.—Cor. Sac. Union.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 18, 1865

The October Elections

The result of the Fall elections as called in several of the Middle and Western States, is always awaited with a peculiar interest. Every fourth year, when a President is to be chosen, these elections, occurring as they do about a month prior to that event are looked upon as furnishing a sure indication of the result of the final struggle. Both the people and the politicians are at all times anxious to know how Pennsylvania, Ohio and the other great States will vote that it may thereby be ascertained what the relative strength of parties is and what prospect each has for achieving a great future triumph. The course national politics will take may be easily predicted from the manner in which the October elections are carried. Hence each party usually makes extraordinary exertions to triumph at these State elections, and thus prepare the way for future victory.

In view of the uneasiness that still exists for the maintenance of the organization known as the Union party, the result of the late elections in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa is most gratifying. The record of votes shows that the people of those States are fully aware of the dangers that still beset the Union and of the necessity of remaining firm to the principles which they have decided shall hereafter prevail in this Government. Reconstruction is a difficult problem, and the people wisely decide that while the way is still hedged with dangers, those who are hostile to the Government and to the interests of freedom shall not be permitted to direct and control the affairs of the Nation.

These elections show that the Democratic party is no longer able to maintain an efficient organization in the Northern States. In Pennsylvania—the State which "Democrats" boasted they would carry even though they might be defeated elsewhere, the Union gains are enormously large. The Unionists of that State have had no majority equal to that just gained, since the rebellion first began. Copperheadism in the East has become too odious ever to achieve another triumph. Their disgraceful proposition to surrender the Government is not yet, nor ever will be forgotten. The great Union victory in Pennsylvania contradicts the assertion of late so frequently made by the Copperheads—that the "Democratic" party was gaining strength and numbers and would soon resume control of the Government again.

We looked for a Union victory in Ohio and are highly gratified to find our expectations fully realized. That State is proving herself the constant friend of the Union, of liberty and of the rights of man.

Iowa too, as usual, is on the right side. She takes no step backwards. Altogether we are more than satisfied with the results achieved. These elections are of great significance. Union men are entitled to rejoice in that they have won still another victory over the party which of late years has been conspicuous only by its disloyalty.

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS AGAIN.—We have a letter from a correspondent at Olds' Ferry on Snake river, giving an account of Indian troubles in that vicinity. Horse stealing and robbery it is said, are the order of the day from the Blue mountains to Snake river. Packers, teamsters and others have a dread of the Burnt river country, and in addition to their hard work, are compelled to stand guard almost constantly through the region just named. Men traveling on hitherto safe routes have been shot and robbed, and the troubles are increasing from the fact that these depredations are usually committed with impunity. The last week in September the Indians made a raid on the Weiser. They stole thirty animals. A party pursued them but was driven back. Another large party started at once in pursuit came up with the red-skins, had a fight with them killed one Indian and recovered the horses. The Indians crossed Snake river near the mouth of Burnt river and escaped. This the first time a party has succeeded in recovering their stock. There is said to be no such thing as security on the road. Our correspondent complains that protection is not given to travelers by the military of this district. Such a state of things as he describes ought certainly to be mended. It is a matter of great difficulty, however, to prevent these annoyances. Four or five Indians will steal and drive off a band of stock, and it is very hard to pursue them with much success. Divided into a great number of small bands, they are able to infest the whole road, and the moment they find travelers off their guard they seize the opportunity for plunder. They will have to be exterminated and the sooner we devise some means to do this the quicker will come the day when travelers can pass through the northern country without molestation.

We have diligently searched the last number for Mr O'Meara's Confederate Democrat, and fail to find a word of revilement about Secretary Stanton. We must be permitted to express an unfeigned surprise at this, no doubt, unintentional omission. For a long time that paper has been using language about the Secretary that would have come with an excellent grace from Thersites or Caliban. The number before the last gravely informed us that Mr. Stanton is now using Mrs Surratt's skull as a drinking cup. With that recital the Democrat probably exhausted all the horrible accusations its invention could conceive. Hence its present silence.

A while ago it was stated that many of the defeated chivalry, disdaining to succumb to the Yankee Government, were going as exiles to Brazil. But they don't go. Everybody will commend their wit if they will cease talking this nonsense, remain quietly at home and become law abiding citizens again.

WASHINGTON COUNTY FAIR.—The Washington County Fair which was announced for this week is postponed until Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 25th, 26th and 27th of this month. It is expected that the exhibition will be one which will do credit to the county. Gov. Gibbs has been invited to attend and deliver an address on the occasion.

THE INDIANS ON THE CHICO ROUTE.—The Indians have again run off all the stock on the Boise and Chico stage line and destroyed most of the stations. The coaches will not be started again till next year. Meantime the mails it is said will be carried on horseback.

IDAHO'S CAPITAL.—A few days ago the balance of the Territorial records remaining at Lewiston were removed to Boise City. The vexed "Capital question" in Idaho seems settled at last.

The property valuation of New York is about $700,000,000; of Boston $170,000,000; Philadelphia $150,000,000; of Baltimore, $100,000,000.

LAWYERS AGAINST THE JUDGE.—The members of the bar at Walla Walla have called a mass meeting to consider the annexation movement and to petition for the removal of Judge Wyche.

Howell Cobb wants Georgia to resume her place in the Union. And he wants to resume his own we presume, as Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The anti amendment party would perish if it were cut loose from slavery, just as one Siamese twin would if severed from the other.

The Walla Walla Statesman denies that Senator Nesmith has anything to do with the Walla Walla annexation movement.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—The Democratic mass meeting last evening was largely attended. Speeches were made by Shaw, Hartley, Barber, Hill, Coffroth and Dr. Rowell, the lately defeated candidates for the office of Mayor on the regular Union ticket.

The bankers and many prominent business houses will close to-morrow in order to give all their employees a chance to work at the polls.

Between ten and eleven o'clock last night two unknown scoundrels were seen laying a plank across the track of the Mission railroad between Third and 5th streets, evidently designing to throw the 4 o'clock car off the track. Fortunately their rascality was discovered by a man who stopped the train and prevented a catastrophe.

The funeral of Capt. and Mrs. Haight will take place Friday. The remains will be taken to Sacramento for interment. We understand on the [illegible] that Mr. Chapman was found on the [illegible] of the [illegible] steamer [illegible]. The funeral of the two members of the San Francisco Musical Society, [illegible] and P. T. Minot, this forenoon was a most impressive spectacle. The band which played was composed of sixty-one performers and the procession included a long line of carriages filled with friends of the deceased.

The work on the Pacific end of the United States and Pacific Telegraph Company's lines is progressing rapidly. The poles will be up in the section from Placerville to Virginia City and will be finished by November 1st, and that from this city to Placerville by the 1st of November. The wire will be here sometime next month. It is expected that they will be in communication with Virginia City by the middle of January.

The following private dispatch was received in this city on Monday:

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15, 1865.

T. G. Wheeler: You are elected General Agent of the Freedman's Commission for the Pacific Coast. Organize the whole territory at once and report to me at Washington. Particulars by mail. Answer. 221 Vermont Avenue, Washington.

WIRTZ—HOW HE BEARS HIS CONFINEMENT.—The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer says, September 11th:

Wirtz, early in the week bore up well under the crushing weight of evidence of his inhuman conduct, and when a witness would repeat some of the profanity he indulged in towards the prisoners, a sardonic grin would overspread his features and he appeared to chuckle pleasantly at such little episodes. But within the last few days he has been greatly depressed, and seems as if stung by remorse for his evil deeds, and begins to realize his dreadful fate, and requested religious consolation, which has been granted him. If ever there was a man who needed it, that man is Henry Wirtz. There is no likeness of Wirtz extant, and he appears unwilling that one should be taken. An effort was made last week by a photographer to get a likeness of him, but it failed. The attempt will be renewed, however, and it is believed will be successful, as the request was endorsed by one of the Commission, and Wirtz will not be likely to do anything contrary to the wishes of any of those trying him, even in such a small matter. His health seems declining from close confinement and nervous agitation, as he is of an exceedingly nervous temperament, elated by the least favorable answer given by a witness, and correspondingly depressed when the evidence bears heavily upon him.

INDIAN EXPEDITIONS.—We are informed by some of the gentlemen lately connected with the prospecting expedition to the Malheur, that several of the company are desirous of organizing another company to go into the same country with a different purpose. When out on the previous trip, they lost one of the company, and perhaps seven by the Indians. They also found unmistakable indications of large bands of horses and cattle in the country in the possession of the Snakes. It is now proposed by Mr George Stoneroad and others, to go into the heart of the Snake country and give those Indians a thorough chastisement. The acquaintance made with the entire country by the late company has rendered an approach upon the Indian camps practicable and probably hundreds of the horses which the Indians have run off from the whites can be retaken. A large company can be obtained here to go on the expedition if a little assistance in the way of ammunition and supplies can be secured from the Government. The few soldiers now stationed around the outskirts of the Snake country are on foot, and practically inefficient for any useful purpose. Give these hardy mountaineers an opportunity, and the Snakes who have so long made this Malheur country their mountain fastness can be speedily driven out or exterminated. One vigorous campaign this fall, by men who are familiar with the country and the location of the secret passes and camps of these Indians, will be worth more than a half century of the sort of Indian fighting which has been carried on along the Owyhee river and Chico road during the past year.—Idaho World.

ATTEMPTED ASSAULT UPON WIRTZ BY A WOMAN.—The Washington Star of September 14th has the following:

On Tuesday afternoon after the Commission for the trial of Wirtz had adjourned and the prisoner was being taken to his quarters at the Old Capitol in charge of the guard, an elderly lady aged about fifty or sixty years who had been waiting to see him, stepped up to one of the guard and inquired if the prisoner was the Andersonville butcher. She was answered in the affirmative when she flew into a paroxysm of passion and endeavored to strike him with her umbrella exclaiming, "You wretch! you butcher! you murdered my son at Andersonville." Being unable to reach him, she got a brick and begged the guard to let her get at him. It was with some difficulty that she could be restrained and the prisoner conducted to his quarters. It was ascertained that she was an Ohio woman who is here for the purpose of procuring the back pay of her sons, all four of whom have been in the service, one having been killed in battle, one murdered at Andersonville, another made hopelessly insane by the treatment there and the fourth only left to return to his home at the close of the war.

JUDGE HOLT IN RESPONSE TO JUDGE BLAIR.—New York, Sept. 15.—Judge Holt in his reply to Blair, denies the latter's charges that he (Judge Holt) made or was in any manner a party to an armistice with the rebel Secretary at the time the question of succoring the garrison in Fort Sumter was before Buchanan's Cabinet. He also says he never signed nor was in any way a party to an agreement that no war should take place on the part of the United States during Buchanan's term, nor does he believe any such agreement was authorized by Buchanan or ever existed. He quotes from the letter he wrote in January 1861 to Colonel Hayne saying should Major Anderson's safety require reinforcements every effort would be made to supply them. At that time, however, the Government did not deem it necessary to send him reinforcements because he made no such request and felt secure in his position.

SECESH CREEK.—Twenty miles southeast of Warren's Diggings is the camp known as Secesh Diggings on Secesh Creek. The creek empties into the South Salmon and has a permanent mining population of eighty persons. There are two large mining companies organized there and the members have ground enough to work upon for twenty years. They have got the available water rights claimed and improved, and have brought in several ditches, affording a large supply of water. One company of eight men was offered $60,000 for their entire interest, but declined it, demanding a round $100,000.—Mountaineer.

The Democratic party of Kentucky, as it calls itself, wishes the people to reject the amendment in order to save slavery. That's exactly what the Southern politicians got up the rebellion for. And the defeat of the amendment will do just as much to promote slavery as the rebellion did.—Louisville Journal.

Hope Haight's Loss

"Write a book, Hope," said my brother Fred one bright morning in February, as he lay stretched at length on the lounge watching my swift fingers as they twisted and twined the heavy braid of brown hair at the back of my head.

Fred and I had that morning talked long about the ways and means of earning money and doing good.

I turned a quick look of inquiry. Fred was in earnest. I could always read his face like an open book. There must have been something comical in my look of surprise, for Fred's handsome manly face broke into numerous sunny dimples, that ended in a good hearty laugh. I laughed too, for Fred's laugh was contagious; it always filled the room with sunshine, at least for me, I did, for no one in all the wide world was dearer to me than my brother Fred.

I waited a moment until the ripples of laughter had subsided, and then spoke.

"What now, Fred?"

"O nothing, only you looked so queer."

"Well, no wonder, you talked so queer."

"I was in earnest, Hope."

"I know it, Fred."

There was a little pause. I finished brushing my hair, adjusted my collar, sat down to my sewing. Fred thrust all his fingers through Melly's curls, lifted them above her head, and then let them fall in a golden shower upon her little white shoulders, drummed on the wall, pulled at the curtain tassels, and finally broke out:

"You could write, Hope, if you would only try."

"I haven't the time," said I.

"You could find time, [illegible]." There was a strong emphasis on the last word.

"Well, but I haven't the tact."

"Pshaw, Hope, I say you have."

"You think so."

"I know so."

"Do you think I could earn my bread and butter by writing?"

"You could do good."

"I doubt that, good brother mine."

"I have heard you say so many times, 'I wish I could do more good.' Now, if your letters have done me more good than anything else, and without them I do not know what I might have been, and I have felt many times while reading them that you might comfort many hearts and strengthen many weak hands with your little pen if you would only be willing to try."

I shook my head and was going to reply, but looking up I caught the doleful discouraged look on Fred's face, and a merry laugh bubbled up and overflowed my lips in spite of me.

Fred did not laugh. I thought he looked half vexed. He was sitting upright now with his golden brown hair terribly tumbled up and his necktie all awry. Little Melly, with her small white fingers, was trying hard to smooth his whiskers straight and make that "dreadful moustache" lie back away from his lips that her baby mouth might steal a kiss.

"Don't look so discouraged, Fred; one of these days, when the war is over and the dear old flag floats once more, proudlier than ever, over all our pure, free America, I'll write a book, and you shall be the hero, and what's more, perhaps there will be a heroine."

Fred smiled, just a little, got up, threw Melly upon his shoulder, and went to his room whistling "John Brown."

He was to go back to his regiment the next day. I had to crush the tears back every time I thought of that, but I did not let him know it. He was brave-hearted and true to his country in the hour of terrible trial, and I wished even then (and in all my after sorrow I have never repented of that wish) that I had a dozen such brothers to defend the dear old flag. I had but one, and he was in himself a host, and I own I felt very proud of him.

That evening I tried to be very gay. I laughed at all of Melly's pranks, I sang little snatches of songs, I caressed Prince, I tried so hard to forget that withering to-morrow that was to take my Fred back to dangers and peril.

Fred, I think, understood my feelings, for now and then I would encounter a look from those earnest eyes that whitened my cheeks and made me tremble with the effort of restraint. I thought that evening never would come to an end. But it did at last, and I had kissed Fred good night and was alone in my own room. I sat down on the bed where Melly was sleeping, and let the great hot tears roll down my face and fairly blind me. I own I felt ashamed to cry. I could not but scorn my heart for being so very weak. I know I wondered what had become of those proud, patriotic feelings that had hushed all my fears a year before, when, at the first call to arms, I had seen my dear one ride away and had cheered his last hour at home with glowing smiles and brave words. Ah! I had learned since then by many a tale of woe—that sometimes brave men that go forth to meet the enemy come not back again.

War had become a thing more real to me, but I knew I was wrestling with fear when I ought to have been trusting in God. I slid down on my knees by the bed, and a strong, unvoiced prayer went up to the dear All Father for strength and courage.

My prayer was granted, for the next morning I parted with Fred without a tear. I buckled on his sword, brushed back the brown hair, every thread of which was precious to me, kissed for the last time those dear lips, clasped that warm hand in mine, and heard, "God bless you, my own darling sister!" and Fred was gone. Melly cried bitterly for a long time, and at last fell asleep with her tear-stained face on the glossy neck of Prince, who, in the kindness of his canine heart, had brushed the little golden curls nearly straight with his sympathetic tongue.

The days passed on. I had little time to weary waiting for letters. They came often and were full of inspiration and hope, unmingled with dark forebodings or fears. March was resonant with trumpet winds; the sunshine grew warmer and warmer; bluebirds, meadow larks and robins twined their songs with the perfume of cowslips, liverwort and violets, and the warm rays bound them in a wreath and made the season a royal crown. A radiance borrowed from sunny days filled my heart. I forgot my fears, or smiled at the thought of them.

All at once Melly sickened. A great scarlet flame of fever wrapped her about, and scorched and smothered, and, finally drank up the little stream of life that had been musical with ripples of childish mirth. I looked on the still face, so sweet and peaceful, and felt that Milly was with her father and mother in that beautiful land where the flowers are fadeless, and eternal spring reigns. I thought how often her baby voice had tried to sing, "I want to be an angel," and now I felt that God had made her such, and, although my heart was sore with the loss, I could not but feel that it was best for her. I laid that little white face away beneath the violets, and went to my lonely home, so still, so silent, with no little gleeful laugh to light it up.

I wrote the sad news to Fred. There were long, dark, weary days between the one on which I wrote and the one on which I received an answer. I hardly know how I endured them. Fred's letter came—so full of sympathy and tender love, so full of love for me. He had forgotten his own sorrow to soothe and assuage mine. I felt strengthened and comforted. I lifted my heart to the dear Father, and I felt healed. I went about my work cheerfully. I went out often and hunted up the poor and needy, and while I was often by the bed of sickness, something would whisper, "Get acquainted with sorrow and suffering, for you will taste more of it soon." I tried to still those whispers or smile them down, but did not always succeed. Spring tremulous with beauty brightened into summer. Bud after bud unclasped its green calyx and openings revealed the wondrous wealth of loveliness that had been nursed so long in silence and darkness. I worked in my garden—that little garden Fred and I had planned and cultivated together. It seemed so much dearer to me now that he was not there. I expected him during the last of June for a short visit. He had written, "I am coming home, dear Hope, for a few days only. I must not be away from my duty long, but those days are all to be spent with you."

How glad I was! I arranged everything about his room just as I knew he should like it best. I put all of Melly's toys and dresses and everything that had been hers away, that the sight of them might not trouble Fred and make him sad. Everything was ready for his coming, and a few more days would bring him.

One morning I was in my garden. I was trying to train up a cypress vine that had got entangled with a morning glory. I was very careful about it, for I did not wish to injure any of the blossoms. I had not heard the gate open, so I did not know that any one was approaching until I heard my name spoken. I turned with a startled quickness, and beheld a soldierly looking gentleman holding an envelope towards me. I trembled from head to foot. I did not reach out my hand to take it, and felt as though I never wished to open it. I knew too well what I might read from an envelope bearing the stamp of the Telegraph Company. I knew I removed my garden gloves slowly, but with an unsteady hand. I turned my face away, looking at my garden. I remember my diamond shaped verbena bed with its wealth of scarlet bloom appeared to me at the time a great pool of blood. Then I took the note—paid the man, who went quietly away, and with gathering faintness entered the house, passed through Fred's room and opening it, read the last line: "Shot through the head by a rebel bullet."

What can helpless woman do when grim Death seems [illegible] standing firmly between her and all to bind [illegible]. Can she stand up alone and look calmly into the face of the terrible foe that has rent her warm heart with his morning blow and robbed her of her all? Can she bear alone and unaided that which strong men have cowered before, and wept and sat down helpless and crushed? Ah! she can weep! and but for those blessed tears the dear Father sends to soften the rigid heart out of which pain has driven all warmth, [illegible] she might go mad.

And I wept, sitting there in Fred's arm chair. I wept floods of tears, and through all their blinding flow I could see but one thing, and that was the [illegible] under Fred's study table, where his [illegible] had left their marks. It was some little thing will hold our vision when in deep grief, and be remembered so distinctly ever after. I think I can tell how many threads of worsted were there and worn. "I know," I thought, "that the tear I am shedding now would have held Fred back from enlisting, and [illegible] might have been happy in his presence, and I so [illegible]." What a thought! and how it shamed me, and I checked my tears.

Woe be to the woman who with her softening tears holds a brave man back from duty. Let her use them to turn man's heart back from sin—let her plead with him for his return to honor and truth, but never to weaken the brave or hold the loyal from duty.

The heart is weak enough at best, and rather let woman's smiles and cheerful words point him onward and encourage him in [illegible] the path that he shrank not from—the right.

They had embalmed my Fred, and so they sent his body back to me. I wiped the death damp away with my own hand, but it was very steady, and no tears fell on the damp hair or rigid face. I even smiled as I noticed the brave, determined expression of those death-stamped features. They sent his sword, a gift from his men, and with it there came a flag with its silken folds torn and bedabbled with blood.

The sight of these things did not move me. I took them in my hands calmly, and looked on that flag with more reverence and love than ever before. My Fred had died for that. He had been a Free Mason, so they buried him with masonic and military honors. I remember there was a great crowd and many tear-wet faces. I know the services were long and impressive, but I think I was in a dream more than as a reality. The sun shone brightly when they laid him down by the side of dear little Melly. It glittered and flashed almost mockingly on the frail feathery sprigs of evergreen, as one by one they fluttered down into the grave where cold and still my dead one was lying. I wept—but those were my last tears, for from that day to this my eyes have been tearless.

That was a lonely summer to me, for both the music of childish prattle and the manly footsteps were hushed in my home. Even my garden gave me little comfort, for every rose seemed blushing with Fred's blood. It seemed to me that all brightness had gone out of my life and I was wandering alone in a starless midnight. Sometimes now, as I sit in the twilight, a vision of the olden glory of loving and being loved comes back, and I get up quickly and with a prayer for strength busy my hands with household duties and try to forget. I know that I am not the only sufferer. I know all over the land other hearts are bleeding for their dead. I feel but a drop of the shower of woe, but whenever I hear that in the deadly struggle the flag for which my Fred so freely died has triumphed, my heart feels that it has not been bathed in vain. I shall never fulfill the promise so lightly made on that February morning. I shall never write that book of which Fred was to be the hero. Yet in that book of remembrance where all noble deeds are recorded, his young life's history is written, and the publication will take place over the River, by the shore of which I patiently wait.

The Christian Commission Work not Finished

For some time the impression has prevailed that there is no further need of the Sanitary and Christian Commission work in the army.

Because we hear the tramp of thousands of our returning soldiers, we have almost forgotten the thousands yet upon the field, and the many sick, suffering and dying in our hospitals.

It is said that the Government now provides all the necessary sanitary supplies, and we need not trouble ourselves further about the welfare of our soldiers.

But those who have had experience among the sick in the army, know well that though the Government makes what may seem to the inexperienced ample provisions for them, there is much, which is absolutely necessary for their comfort, that it does not supply.

So long as we have hospitals filled with soldiers so long do they demand our sympathy and material aid.

Our men in the field, as well, are demanding our attention, and calling from Tennessee, Texas, Arkansas and the Plains for reading matter.

During the next six months, they will be comparatively inactive, and must have something to interest or occupy their leisure hours, or suffer much from want of it.

An opportunity thus opens for a great work of good among them.

They are calling for earnest christian laborers to go among them, and care as well for the spiritual as the temporal welfare.

To meet this demand we earnestly appeal to all friends of the Commission for money and stores to carry on our work.

We want first class Christian men to enter this golden harvest—to spend three months in the work in Texas. If this will not permit going so far South, then at Little Rock, for a term of two months.

The Territorial Department, where there are over thirty thousand troops, opens up a great work for the Commission, and for this Department we want delegates for a term of three months to sustain the work already begun.

That there is a demand for further material and labor for our Commission, and that Gen. Sheridan feels that such a necessity exists, appears from the following letter of a Christian Commission delegate to the Branch at St. Louis:

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1, 1865.

J. H. Parsons, Cor. Sec'y U. S. C. C., St. Louis:

DEAR BRO.—We reached New Orleans landing at six o'clock yesterday. I tried to see Gen. Sheridan, but could not until this morning. Called at his headquarters. After waiting sometime a Major (Gen. Sheridan's adjutant) came in. I stated my business, told him where I was going, and that I wanted transportation on a Government boat to Texas. He replied that he could not give it to me, and told me to go to Brig. Gen. Sherman's headquarters, to which I proceeded. While waiting for him to come, Gen. Sheridan came in, inquiring for the Agent of the Christian Commission who had just been at his headquarters. I told him I was the man, showed him my papers and told him where and what I was going for. He said it was just what they wanted and that was why he had come over to see me, and would do all he could to assist me. I asked him for transportation on the first Government boat for myself and collaborer, and to have my goods put through as quick as possible. Gen. Sheridan at once gave orders to Brig. Gen. Sherman, Provost Marshal General, to give free transportation over all his department, and ordered the Assistant Quartermaster to forward our stores. An order was then attached to each of our Commission ordering all Assistant Quartermasters in the Department to furnish free transportation on all Government steamers and military railroads. Our stores were ordered on the boat leaving tomorrow night, when we expect to leave for Galveston and Houston, and then commence our labors for the suffering and needy "boys in blue."

Yours in Christ,
S. J. GRANGE,
Agent U. S. C. C.

Parties willing to engage in the work in any of the above mentioned fields will please [illegible] correspondence with the Secretary of the Commission, B. F. Jacobs, and arrangements will be made to send them forward at once.

N. W. CHRISTIAN COMMISSION.

THE MAIDS OF MERRY ENGLAND.—Mr. Ruskin, who is allowed to be a judge of such matters, says that the present style of female dress is the most graceful and artistic ever worn. I quite agree with him, and I think it has had a magical effect in bringing out and setting off the beauty of the maids of merry England. There are no plain girls nowadays. Positive ugliness is all gathered banished from the land. All the girls are pretty. Walking in the streets, or driving in the park, or sitting in a box at the opera, one is kept in a state of continual admiration by the numbers of pretty girls that meet the eye on every hand. All the female beauty has, of course, existed at any time, but I venture to think that it is only lately that it has been shown to the fullest advantage. In these days of economics and art training we know how to make the most and the best of things. Mark what a change the [illegible] has been also wrought in red hair. How many years is it since red hair was unanimously determined to be [illegible]? To be carroty was to be a fright, and an allusion to a carroty girl in a song or play was sure to raise a laugh. [illegible]. But now red is the fashion, the rage. The girl with the ruddy locks, instead of plastering her hair down with pomatum, or hiding it like a [illegible] leaden statue of Peter Lead [illegible], combs it out and lets the sun into it, and straightway it is a fleece of gold. Golden locks, that is to say, the ridiculed "carrots" of another period, are now the admiration of all the women. It is no secret, I believe, that many women are in the habit of bleaching their dark hair in order to impart to it the tinge of the fashionable and admired red. I am informed too, and I can add my personal testimony to the fact, that old haired girls who have been on the shelf until they were no longer young, [illegible] in the matrimonial market like wallflowers.

It is now regarded as certain that the Congressional elections in Tennessee on the 1st of August resulted as follows:

1st District—N. G. Taylor, Union.
2d District—Horace Maynard, Union.
3d District—W. B. Stokes, Union.
4th District—Edmund Cooper, Union.
5th District—W. B. Campbell, Conservative.
6th District—D. B. Thompson, Conservative.
7th District—Isaac R. Hawkins, Union.
8th District—Dr. [illegible], Union.

GENERAL HOOKER.—The statement in a Washington paper that Major General Hooker was to be married on the 12th of September, was an error. His engagement for that day was to attend the New York State Fair at Utica. The newspaper gossips are no more authorized to fix the General's wedding day than they are to estimate the income of the lady who accepts his hand, both of which have been rudely done, to the annoyance of the parties interested.

VERMONT.—In reference to the Vermont election, the Rutland Herald publishes a list of representatives elected, one hundred and sixty of whom are Republicans and six Democrats. The Republican candidate for Governor is elected by the usual majority. The Senate will again be unanimously Union, as last year.

Josh Billings advocates the adoption of the practice of dying young on the principle of economy. He says, "It saves the clothes."

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

FRENCH MEDICAL OFFICE,

FOR THE

CURE OF SPECIAL DISEASES,

ARMORY HALL BUILDING,

Northeast Corner Montgomery and Sacramento streets,

ENTRANCE ON EITHER MONTGOMERY OR SACRAMENTO STREET.

DR. PERRAULT CONTINUES TO TREAT PRIVATE AND CHRONIC COMPLAINTS, SCROFULA, NERVOUS DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE BLOOD, SPERMATORRHOEA, IMPOTENCE, STERILITY.

DR. PERRAULT is a Graduate of the University of Queen's College, and is the ONLY REGULAR GRADUATE who practices as a SPECIALIST in San Francisco.

DR. PERRAULT will cure all who are afflicted with Nervous Debility, Loss of Memory and Vigor, etc., resulting from injurious habits contracted in youth, or excesses in maturity, which produce constitutional debility and premature failure.

It is a melancholy fact that thousands fall victims to disease owing to unskillful treatment and improper use of Mercury.

All cases of Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Strictures, Diseases of the Bladder, Gravel, Spermatorrhoea, and Impotence will be cured in a few days without prevention from business.

To the Ladies.

Ladies suffering from Whites, Falling of the Womb, Suppression of the Menses, or Profuse Flowing, Costiveness, Piles, Weakness of the Back, Pain in the Side, Headache, Palpitation, and all other diseases which the female system is subject to, will find prompt relief by addressing themselves to DR. PERRAULT, corner Sacramento and Montgomery streets. Private entrance on Sacramento street.

To those seeking our advice, a plain statement of their case will be given, whether curable or not. All cases taken and treatment warranted. No charges for advice. No poisons, or trash medicine to injure the constitution, or making sick to make well. Honest in our dealings, frank in our opinions, moderate in our charges. We invite investigation, claiming to know everything, nor to cure everything, but the claim to reason and common sense, and a treatment that is pronounced incurable.

We particularly request those who have tried the [illegible] that scientific Physician, boasted and advertised till worn out and discouraged, to call upon us. It will cost nothing to consult us.

N. B.—Persons at a distance can be cured at home by addressing a letter to DR. PERRAULT, stating their case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and the general habits of living, occupation, etc. Letters to be addressed to J. PERRAULT, M. D., corner Sacramento and Montgomery streets. Rooms 10 and 11, up stairs. Office, San Francisco.

DR. PERRAULT still retains the agency of DR. BIOT'S FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS. Their immense sale has established their reputation as the only safe and efficient remedy for all irregularities and obstructions in females, no matter from what cause. On receipt of five dollars, these pills will be sent by Mail or Express to any part of the world, secure from curiosity or damage. s22d6m

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS AT tended the Constitution Water renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions to the debilitated and shattered system. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of all maladies above mentioned and also:

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLUOR ALBUS,

And in every disease in any way connected with the disorder or decay of the Procreative Functions. Personal abuse or imprudence, or any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER,

Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once restored to renewed vigor and built up. Well may this celebrated medicine be called the

MEDICAL WONDER.

The steeping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man, to stand erect, to move with a firm step, his mind which was previously sunk in gloom, or almost imbecile, rises with buoyant light and active, and he goes forth regenerated and conscious of new vigor. The medicine is the CONSTITUTION WATER itself, and restores [illegible].

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER, INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS AND CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGUARY AND BURNING
OR PAINFUL
URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, AND MUCOUS
OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING.

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY IT in these cases, and you will ever give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic.
